THIRD SUNDAY OF LENT
TODAY'S FOCUS: THE MERCY OF MANURE

The farmer knows that no life will grow without being fertilized. God knows we cannot grow without mercy; yet even divine mercy, if we reject it, leaves us to wither.

There are no guarantees in gardening. There are no guarantees in relationships. There are no guarantees in parenting. There seems to be a continual tension between what we try to make happen and what actually happens. Life's difficulties cannot be solved like a math or engineering problem that has a definitive answer. Some things cannot be resolved for certain. How do we deal with that? How do we carry on? How do we plunge ahead day by day in a spirit of courage and patience until the surety of heaven finally rescues us?

Exodus 3: 1-8a, 13-15

Psalm 103: 8a

1 Corinthians 10: 1-6, 10-12

Luke 13: 1-9

As time has gone on, the promise made earlier to Abram that his descendants would inherit the land remains unfulfilled, with Israel now languishing, enslaved, in Egypt. Moses has fled to Midian to escape punishment for killing an Egyptian (Exodus 2: 11-15). There he encounters the God of Israel, who affirms that he has not forgotten Israel or divine promises. God remains the "God of the fathers," and faithful to them and their descendants. Now Moses has been charged with being God's instrument for fulfilling those promises. Two names of God are given here: I AM, which comes to represent the infinite being of God, and "Lord", a euphemistic rendering of the divine name that is forever to be remembered in connection with the ancestors: this God is a faithful God.
